TODAY: Celebration with the Stars
February 28, 2:30-4:00 PM
Kresge Cafeteria
Employees who have reached a service milestone of five or more years will be honored.
Read a list of this year's honorees

Does being overweight really reduce mortality?
Panelists at an HSPH teach-in attempted to clear up public confusion about the relationship between weight and health in the wake of a controversial recent paper that received extensive media coverage.

Poll finds big gap between parents and experts on childhood obesity
A new poll finds that many families face challenges in trying to help children eat well and be more active and that there was a significant gap between parents’ perceptions of their children’s weight and expert definitions.

Event Highlights
The Coming Transformation in Global Health: A Conversation with Nigel Crisp, Julio Frenk and Paul Farmer
Thursday, February 28
4:30 – 5:30 PM
Harvard Medical School
Waterhouse Room
Taming the Beast: How Do We Fix Our Ailing Health Care System?
A conversation with David Goldhill, author of Catastrophic Care: How American Health Care Killed My Father—and How We Can Fix It
Goldhill will be introduced by HMS Dean Jeffrey S. Flier and interviewed by Ashish K. Jha, Professor of Health Policy, HSPH.
March 1, 4-5 p.m.
4:00-5:00 PM
Harvard Medical School
Armenise Amphitheater

Centennial Moments
Successes, stories, and surprising facts from our first 100 years.

Around the School

In Memoriam: Nevin

Scrimshaw, HSPH alumnus and global nutrition pioneer

Nevin Scrimshaw, MPH ’59, pioneered the use of protein supplements to save children at risk of dying from malnutrition.

Using media—and Muppets—to promote health

A representative from the Sesame Workshop recently spoke at the School about promoting health messages to children around the world.

Seeking nominations for 2013 Armen H. Tashjian Jr. Award for Excellence in Endocrine Research

Nominations due by March 25

Recognize a job well done with Lunch On Us

Looking for a small token to use to recognize staff for a job well done or for going above and beyond—how about the Lunch on Us Program?