Newly discovered mechanism suggests novel approach to prevent type 1 diabetes

A disease mechanism in type 1 diabetes can be targeted using simple, naturally occurring molecules to help prevent the disease.

In biostatistics, complexity rules

Jesse Berlin, ScD '88, (pictured, right) recipient of this year's Lagakos Distinguished Alumni Award, discussed challenges he's encountered as a biostatistician in his October 31 award lecture.

Epidemiology at HSPH: Celebrating an ‘adventurous discipline’

HSPH faculty, alumni, and students gathered to reflect on the past and future of epidemiology at Harvard during the Cutter Symposium, held on November 8 as part of the School's Centennial celebration.

Event Highlights

Longwood food drive
November 15-26
See link for collection box locations

Seminar tribute to the late Peter Ofner
Ofner, who passed away in May, was an adjunct lecturer of toxicology at HSPH, an associate professor of pharmacology and urology at Tufts University School of Medicine, and director of the Steroid Biochemistry Lab at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital.
November 18
12:00-1:00 PM
Tufts University Behrakis Auditorium, 150 Harrison Ave.

Senior Leader Administrative Forum Breakfast
Join Michael Kan, executive dean for administration, for an informal discussion
November 19
9:00-10:30 AM
90 Smith St., Rm. 311

HR Open Office Hours
December 3
10:00 AM-2:00 PM
Kresge 504

Centennial Moments

Successes, stories, and surprising facts as the School celebrates its 2013-2014 centennial.

Around the School

David Williams honored
David R. Williams, Florence
Sprague Norman and Laura Smart, Norman Professor of Public Health, was honored by The New York Academy of Medicine on November 7.

Symposium explores trends in cardiovascular disease in Brazil, Mexico

The rise of cardiovascular disease in two rapidly growing countries—Mexico and Brazil—was the focus of a symposium organized by Swiss Re and HSPH in October at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in Cambridge.

Implementing policy priorities a focus at workshop for health ministry officials

About 40 top-level health ministry officials from seven countries gathered in Pretoria, South Africa, in mid-October for a week-long program facilitated by HSPH aimed at helping them develop strategies to implement their top policy priorities.

Take EcoOpportunity's 'Cold Turkey' sustainability pledge

Before you leave for the long Thanksgiving weekend, demonstrate thanks to our planet by preparing your office with a few easy steps to reduce the burden on our resources.

A future NPR host in the HSPH family

A photo by Ian Tosh, HSPH’s new manager for media and educational technology services, of his young son dressed as Tom Ashbrook for Halloween earned a special invitation from the NPR host.

---

Quick links:

Kiosk issue archive | HSPH home page
Latest HSPH news coverage | HSPH calendar
Download our app for iPhone and Android | Download Harvard Public Health magazine for e-reader

Harvard School of Public Health | 90 Smith Street | Boston, MA 02120
Contact us