If Harvard submits only one proposal, it can be either a Data-Enabled Science and Engineering (DESE) proposal or focused on another crosscutting, interdisciplinary theme aligned with national research and STEM education priorities. If Harvard submits two proposals, one of the proposals must be focused on DESE.

More details can be found below:

Sponsor: National Science Foundation

Program: National Science Foundation Research Traineeship (NRT) Program

Internal Due Date: May 5, 2014

Internal Competition Instructions:

Please read the funding announcement carefully. Interested applicants are asked to email Autumn Bennett@harvard.edu the following items rolled up in one PDF:

- Funding proposal, not more than two (2) pages, a third page may be used for associated graphics if needed. Please be sure to indicate if your proposal is DESE focused or “other”

- Institutional Support- a letter of institutional support for the project should it chosen for submission to the NSF

Sponsor Due Date: June 24, 2014

Overview of Opportunity:

The NSF Research Traineeship (NRT) program is designed to encourage the development of bold, new, potentially transformative, and scalable models for STEM graduate training that ensure that graduate students develop the skills, knowledge, and competencies needed to pursue a range of STEM careers. The NRT program initially has one priority research theme - Data-Enabled Science and Engineering (DESE); in addition, proposals are encouraged on any other crosscutting, interdisciplinary theme. In either case, proposals should identify the alignment of project research themes with national research priorities and the need for innovative approaches to train graduate students in those areas. NRT projects should develop evidence-based, sustainable approaches and practices that substantially improve STEM graduate education for NRT trainees and for STEM graduate students broadly at an institution. NRT emphasizes the development of competencies for both research and research-related careers. Strategic collaborations with the private sector, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), government agencies, museums, and academic partners that enhance research quality and impacts and that facilitate development of technical and transferrable professional skills are encouraged. Creation of sustainable programmatic capacity at institutions is an expected outcome. Proposals accordingly are expected to describe how institutions will support the continuation and institutional-level scaling of effective training elements after award closure.

Overview:

Training Programs

This program will support high quality Bachelors, Masters, Doctoral, and Post-Doctoral (OMR only) training programs. This program will not support academic certificate programs. Grantees are expected to track all program graduates, including placement and progress in their careers.

Certain training areas are considered "core disciplines". The core disciplines are: OMR, OHN, IH, and OS. In addition to these core disciplines, in order to take full advantage of the unique strengths and capabilities of institutions, consideration will be given to the development of new and innovative academic component programs in allied disciplines that are relevant to the occupational safety and health field, e.g., ergonomics, industrial toxicology, occupational injury prevention, occupational epidemiology, occupational health psychology, occupational health services, and agricultural safety and health. There must be a minimum of five (5) full time trainees in each program, with the exception of OMR, where there must be at least four (4) full time trainees.

Occupational Health Physics is an allied occupational safety and health academic program that continues as a new area of interest to NIOSH. Occupational health physicists establish radiation protection measures and radiation exposure characteristics for individual and classes of workers in various occupational environments where radioactive materials are used. Occupational Health Physics academic and research training programs are needed that provide masters and doctoral level training in health physics, radiation protection measures, exposure pathway analysis, and radiation dose estimation and reconstruction. These are critical areas of instruction and essential components of occupational health radiation protection programs.

Accreditation by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (ACGME), <http://www.acgme.org>, is required for OMR programs. In addition, a TPG is encouraged to have accreditation of the Bachelors and Masters level training programs by applicable recognized specialized accrediting organizations, including ABET, <http://www.abet.org>.

TPGs must document that the core or allied training programs proposed will fill a critical gap in the selected occupational safety and health disciplines that meet specific regional workforce needs. A regional OSH workforce assessment is an important tool in establishing the need for OSH training programs. Evidence of meeting such needs includes documented placement of graduates in responsible occupational safety and health practitioner and/or research positions in the private and/or public sectors. In addition, TPGs must have an advisory committee of three or more individuals who can provide advice on the program focus and curriculum. The committee may include representatives of labor, industry, government agencies, academic institutions and professional associations.

Each core area program curriculum should include courses that fully prepare trainees to move into and/or advance in the OSH work environment. Appropriate clinical rotations and field experiences with occupational safety and health agencies or other appropriate groups and with labor-management health and safety groups are encouraged.

Core programs can offer masters and doctoral degrees. Pre-doctoral training must lead to the Masters degree and/or the Ph.D. degree or a comparable research doctoral degree. Pre-doctoral training should emphasize fundamental training in areas of occupational safety and health sciences.

A TPG is encouraged to provide Doctoral and Masters trainees instruction in the following areas:

1. Responsible conduct of research (required for all Masters [research] and Doctoral trainees)
2. How to write research grant proposals (optional)
3. How to manage research laboratories (optional)

In addition, a TPG must have an Under-represented Trainee Recruitment and Retention Plan.

TPGs are encouraged to recruit and train students to help address the under-representation among the occupational safety and health professional workforce. A detailed plan to address the under-representation of minorities among occupational safety and health professionals and for the recruitment of under-represented minorities to the core programs must be a part of the application. The initial review group will review this plan as part of the overall rating of the application. Specific efforts to conduct outreach activities to develop collaborative training programs with academic institutions serving minority and other under-represented populations, such as Tribal Colleges and Universities, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and Hispanic-Serving Institutions are encouraged.

Limited Submission: National Science Foundation - Scalable Nanomanufacturing/ NSF 14-544

Program: Scalable Nanomanufacturing \(SNM\)

How many proposals Harvard can submit: One (1) proposal across Harvard

Type of Award: Shared or Continuing Grant

Estimated # of Awards: five (5) to eight (8)

Anticipated funding amount: $5,000,000. Awards will be in the range of $250,000-$375,000 a year for 4 (four) years

Anticipated Date of Awards: September 2014

Sponsor LOI: Not Required

Sponsor Preliminary Proposal Submission: Not Required

Sponsor Due Date: June 16, 2014

Internal Due Date: Monday, April 28, 2014

Internal Competition Instructions:

Please read the funding announcement carefully and, following the instructions found at the bottom of page 8 under Project Summary, submit a Project Summary, no longer than one page in length to Autumn\_Bennett@harvard.edu no later than April 28, 2014. A second blank page can be used for any associated graphics. A third page should provide summary information on the following:

- A management plan for coordinating project activities and attaining key project milestones
- The role to be played by any participating organizations (please indicate if the organization's involvement is confirmed or still in process)

Current CV of the PI and any other appropriate stakeholders (no preferred format)

A letter from the appropriate Department Chair or Center Director acknowledging their support of this project should the proposal be successful.

Overview of Opportunity:

Proposals to this topic area should target nanomanufacturing processes with a clear commercial relevance. The program particularly seeks proposals that include fundamental research in key, well-defined areas that are compellingly identified as roadblocks to scale-up. Both of these elements should be carefully explained and justified in proposals, since both the scientific novelty and the feasibility of the methods being researched will be important selection factors. Collaborative activities with industrial companies are strongly encouraged and collaborations in which industrial partners develop industrially relevant test beds where university and company researchers can experiment and interact are particularly encouraged. It is highly desirable that such firms be consulted early in the proposal preparation process and that their intellectual contributions be clearly explained in the proposal.

Limited Submission: National Science Foundation - Cultivating Cultures for Ethical STEM (CCE STEM) NSF 14-546

Program: Cultivating Cultures for Ethical STEM \(CCE STEM\)

How many proposals Harvard can submit: One proposal as the lead organization

Type of Award: Standard Grant

Estimated # of Awards: six (6) to eight (8)

Anticipated Funding Amount: $3,050,000/year, divided among 6 to 8 grants, for five (5) years

Sponsor LOI: Not Required

Sponsor Preliminary Proposal Submission: Not Required

Sponsor Due Date: June 17, 2014

Internal Due Date: Monday, May 5, 2015

Important note about this opportunity: "Note: NSF does not consider proposals for medical research and hence, the program will not consider proposals focused on ethics for medical students or in medical education. It will consider proposals that address medical informatics, biomedical engineering, systems engineering and social scientific studies of health and medicine."

Internal Competition Instructions:

- Please read the funding announcement carefully and submit a proposal of not more than two (2) pages to Autumn\_Bennett@harvard.edu no later than May 5, 2014. The proposal should address the questions posed in the funding announcement. Please indicate if your proposal is an Institutional Transformation proposal or not.
- Current CV of the PI and any other significant stake holders (no preferred format)
- A letter of support from the appropriate Department Chair or Center Director

Overview of Opportunity:

Cultivating Cultures for Ethical STEM (CCE STEM) funds research projects that identify factors that are efficacious in the formation of ethical STEM researchers in all the fields of science and engineering that NSF supports. CCE STEM solicits proposals for research that explores the following: 'What constitutes ethical STEM research and practice? Which cultural and institutional contexts promote ethical STEM research and practice and why?' Factors one might consider include: honor codes, professional ethics codes and licensing requirements, an ethic of service and/or service learning, life-long learning requirements, curricula or memberships in organizations (e.g. Engineers without Borders) that stress social responsibility and humanitarian goals, institutions that serve under-represented groups, institutions where academic and research integrity are cultivated at multiple levels, institutions that cultivate ethics across the curriculum, or programs that promote group work, or do not grade. Do certain labs have a 'culture of academic integrity'? What practices contribute to the establishment and maintenance of ethical cultures and how can these practices be transferred, extended to, and integrated into other research and learning settings?

Successful proposals will include a comparative dimension, either between or within institutional settings that differ along these or other factors.

CCE STEM research projects will use basic research to produce knowledge about what constitutes responsible or irresponsible, just or unjust scientific practices and sociotechnical systems, and how to best instill students with this knowledge.

This opportunity will be offered again with the following Sponsor Deadlines:

February 17, 2015

February 16, 2016

February 15, 2017

February 15, 2018
